Bling the Dust.

During a peculiarly bad dust storm at one of the camps a recruit ventured to seek shelter in the sacred precincts of the cook's domain.

After a time he broke an awkward silence by saying to the cook: "If you put the lid on that camp kettle you would not get so much dust in your soup."

The irate cook glared at the intruder and then broke out: "See here, my lad, your business is to serve your country."

"Yes," interrupted the recruit; "but not to eat it."—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

NEW ARCHITECTURE STYLES FOR CHINA

Vast Contrast Between Old Chinese Style and Modern German Styles.

Peking, July 31.—(Associated Press Correspondence.)—Western styles of architecture have been making their appearance in government buildings in various parts of the city of Peking in recent years, and because of the presence of enterprising German architects, the new government buildings which are going up generally have the high German roof. These buildings stand in contrast to the Chinese buildings, which are also conspicuous for heavy roofs but of a totally different style. There have been criticisms by those foreigners whose artistic temperaments do not permit them to appreciate the incongruity of architecture. The office to them has now reached the climax, for a contractor who has been engaged in breaking new gates, into Peking's great wall has gone further and is altering the great loop holes for cannon in the pagodas at the Chien-Men, the front gates of Peking, into windows with prominent European arches over them.

The old Manchu regime had its own fixed rules and regulations for architecture; the present government is adopting foreign styles with a rapidity that often causes remarkable, sometimes ludicrous, incongruities.

Ambuscade Scales.
"Thos. Mrs. Smarte is getting too clever, growled the butcher."
"What's the matter?" asked his wife.

"When she came in just now she told me I ought to rename my scales the ambuscade brand."
"Well, why—"

"I've just looked up the word," went on the infuriated man, "and the dictionary says that ambuscade means to lie in wait!"—Chicago Herald.

A well-known Australian legislator was advocating certain reforms in education affairs, when a member of the opposition became rather excited, and exclaimed:
"Why, at this very moment I have a school in my eye."

"Pardon me," interrupted the orator. "Not a school; only one pupil, I think."—Philadelphia Record.

American Novelist Now a British Subject

After living in England for nearly forty years, Henry James, novelist, brother of the late Prof. William James, professor of psychology at Harvard, has become a British subject. Naturalization papers have been issued to him. Most Americans imagined Mr. James had long ago become a subject of the king, but he had not thought this necessary until he felt he should his allegiance to the allies in the war. He took this course because he wanted to show in a course specious way his feelings in the war.

Bachelor and Baby.
Bachelor—Y-y-e-s, what a beautiful child.
Mother—The image of Mr. Jones, I should say.

Bachelor—Er—yes—very much! (Aside—Confound it. Why don't they say whether it's a he or she!)

Bachelor (desperately)—Well, well, but he's a fine little fellow, isn't he? How old is it now? Do his teeth bother her much? She looks like the family, doesn't it? But I suppose everybody says it does.—Exchange.

Existing Only.
"Where're you living now, Podgers?"
"Nowhere. Boarding at the same old place."—Browning's Magazine.

Still Flourishing.
They were discussing at the club the destructiveness of the war, relative The Literary Digest.
"Well," remarked the Ordinary Man, "if the Kaiser keeps up this sort of performance there's no nothing left in the world when the war's over."

"Yes, there will," said the Smart Mortal.

"What?" asked the Ordinary Man.
"The Thaw case," remarked the Smart Mortal wearily.

EMBROIDERY.

August seems very far from Christmas, but just think how pleasant it will be to know that you have a box of gifts ready, so get a yard of linen and see what can be done. First there is the never ceasing pin cushion, if you will give them, at least make them yourself, or have them done by some one who knows how to work properly. A top sided, badly embroidered pin cushion is an apology for a present, but they can be made very prettily. Quilt a charming little affair is made of two pieces of linen, one slightly smaller than the other, about the size of a tea plate, scollop, and put eyelets for ribbon on each, the smaller circle is the top, on that embroider a spray of flowers, make a tiny cushion of wool, put between circles and lace together with ribbon to match the flower. They are also very attractive in pink or blue linen, scolloped in white, with a dot in each scollop. Another one that is not only very pretty, but so convenient, is the hanging cushion, cut two circles of thin pasteboard, and two larger ones of linen, work one piece with a Christmas bell in gold thread, to which is tied a spray of holly, or a tiny bunch of pink or blue flowers, on the other piece just a leaf and a few berries, or a blossom or two, put smoothly over the pasteboard circles, and whip together neatly, tack a bow and one long loop of ribbon at the top, and fill with pins, pushing just the points in between the two pieces of cardboard, either plain or fancy pins can be used. A pair of napkin rings, edges done in fine scollops, with just an old English initial on each, or a wreath of small flowers, with small initial, makes a dainty present. You can get several cushions, and sets of napkin rings from the yard of linen, and have enough left to make some of the crocheted bags that all women are delighted to have. In white, with a large initial in blue on one side and some pretty design on the other, they make charming presents.

But do remember in embroidering, to do the padding as carefully as you do the satin stitch; if the padding is not perfectly smooth and even, your finished work will be irregular, and lumpy, which, to speak mildly, is hideous. If you have a friend whom you want to remember in a specially charming manner, make her one of those lovely waists made from one yard of sheer batiste, scollop the revers, or edge with lace if you prefer, and put a dainty bit of embroidery on each, she will love you for ever. I have some delightful needle cases and handkerchief cases that I will tell you about next week.

NOT AN ISOLATED CASE.

Many Similar Cases in Anderson and Vicinity.
This Anderson man's story given here is not an isolated case by any means; week after week, year after year, our neighbors are telling similar good news.
W. H. Smith, farmer, 549 E. Orr St., Anderson, says: "I was almost frantic with pains across the small of my back. When I was picking cotton, a sharp pain would often catch me in the small of my back and I would have to brace myself in order to straighten up again. The kidney secretions passed too freely and they were scanty and burned in passage. The secretions were highly colored, too and looked like brick-dust. I had suffered for a couple of months when I read of Doan's Kidney Pills and got some at Evans' Pharmacy. The first few doses relieved me and one box fixed me up in fine shape."
Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Smith had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.
